Why does water contract when it is cooled down - answers.com

Liquids expand when heated and contract when cooled. The molecules of water are always moving in a random motion. This is called Brownian motion. The hotter the water is the more they move.

How to Cool Your Pool in the Summer - Leslie's Poolapedia

The easiest way to cool your water off is to use an aerator. An aerator is an attachment that plugs or screws into the side of your pool that sprays a fountain of water being back into your pool. Oxygen is then introduced to the small droplets of water that are sprayed through the air and when it lands back into the pool, it helps bring the pool temperature down a few degrees. For example, if
