Perception by Howard Robinson, 1994 | Online Research ...

This book is a history and a defence of what, with some shorthand, I will call the sense-datum theory of perception. It is part of the rubric for books in the series The Problems of Philosophy that a section of the book should be historical and another section should tell the plain truth, unburdened by scholarship.

Perception - Howard Robinson - Google Books

Howard Robinson surveys the history of the arguments for and against the theory from Descartes to Husserl. He then shows that the objections to the theory, particularly Wittgenstein's attack on privacy and those of the physicalists, have been unsuccessful. He argues that we should return to the theory sense-data in order to understand perception. In doing so he seeks to overturn a consensus.
