Benton's and Gomez's "Chinese in Britain" is a major undertaking on the history of Chinese migration to Britain. While Chinese laborers were recruited to the United States to work the sugar plantations, gold mines, and railroads, they went to the United Kingdom for different reasons. The distinct political, social, and economic history of Great Britain shaped the experience of its newcomers. The Chinese in Britain, 1800-Present | SpringerLink
This study points up the complex interplay of ethnic and national identities in the lives of Chinese in Britain, arguing that transnational studies reinforce essentialist conceptions of identity and cultural authenticity in diasporic communities, and thus frustrate the promotion of ethnic co-existence and social cohesion in multi-ethnic societies.
